Workshop Description

This two day workshop will focus on various carving techniques and processes for bone and/or antler. It will be partly observational, with demonstrations of a number of processes and techniques, and partly practical, where participants will work towards the completion of a piece that could evolve into a small pendant or a broach. Lashing techniques will be covered. Design processes will also be discussed during the course of the workshop.

This workshop is ideal for the beginner and for multi-level artists who have some practice in working with bone/ivory or antler/horn. Artists who have experience working in other mediums (wood, stone and jewellery) can look at this workshop in terms of experiencing new materials and techniques.
